Evotech exhibits at NHS IPC Conference 2022

Now that Covid-19 restrictions have been dropped, it's great to be able to meet people in person again at conferences and exhibitions. We recently exhibited at the NHS Infection Prevention & Control show, where we discussed indoor air quality with healthcare practitioners.

At the event we showcased the award-winning Airthings for Business indoor air quality monitors that can monitor various pollutants and environmental factors, allowing changes to be made to ventilation systems to optimise air quality and reduce the risk of virus transmission. When integrated with modern HVAC systems, significant energy savings can also be made helping estates managers reduce running costs and reach carbon emissions goals.

We were also able to listen to policy makers and strategic leaders share the latest IPC guidelines and implementation advice. The exhibition showcased the latest cutting edge technologies, services, products and innovation from global industry partners that will enable healthcare professionals to further improve patient outcomes, service delivery and whilst making potential budgetary savings.
